

Emily Stone, Staff Attorney, National Agricultural Law Center

Emily is a staff attorney at the National Agricultural Law Center in Fayetteville, Arkansas. She is a proud native of Pike Road, Alabama, where some of her earliest memories involved the agriculture industry. Emily received her Bachelor of Science in Agriculture Communications from Auburn University before attending the University of Arkansas School of Law for both a Juris Doctor and an LL.M. in Agricultural and Food Law. During her years at Arkansas Law, Emily served in various roles for the Arkansas Journal of Food Law & Policy including as Staff Editor, Editor-in-Chief, and Graduate Assistant. Emily specializes in food law, and her work focuses on legal and policy topics related to food labeling, food safety, nutrition programs, local foods, and alternative proteins. Emily is licensed to practice law in Arkansas.