AGRICULTURAL COOPERATIVE LAW: A SELECTIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY

*Kathryn McTigue-Floyd

A cooperative is an autonomous association of persons united voluntarily to meet their common economic, social, and cultural needs and aspirations through a jointly-owned and democratically-controlled enterprise.¹

A cooperative is a business voluntarily owned and controlled by its member patrons and operated for them and by them on a nonprofit or cost basis. It is owned by the people who use it.²

INTRODUCTION

In 1914, with the passage of the Clayton Act, Congress made the agricultural community partially immune from antitrust laws governing businesses.³ Because of this immunity, cooperatives effectively provide opportunities for the agricultural community that would be unavailable to the individual producer. Today, agricultural cooperatives play an important role in the global economy. The popularity of cooperatives continues to grow. Today there are over 4,000 agricultural cooperatives in the United States with a combined annual net income of nearly $2 billion.⁴ The mission of the cooperative, to serve its members, remains the same even as the global marketplace changes around them.

This bibliography provides an overview of the resources available to research the law of agricultural cooperatives in the United States. It should prove useful to the student and legal scholar with interest in this area, as well as to the practitioner researching the laws regulating agricultural cooperatives. Resources relating to the taxation of cooperatives are not addressed. As with any legal research tool, all information should be thoroughly checked for currency.

Because there are so few resources that treat the topic of agricultural cooperatives comprehensively, it is useful to consult a wide variety of sources. Treatises relating to business and agriculture typically provide general information on cooperatives. Law review and academic journal articles cover more specific areas that the treatises ignore entirely. Many organizations produce reports and serial publications that are necessary for a thorough examination of this area of law. Additionally, there are resources accessible through the Internet, which are not available in print format. Conference proceedings and reports are not referenced, but many are available through the web sites noted in the "Internet Resources" section of this bibliography.

The Uniform System of Citation was used for reference cites, but was modified to include additional information where this might prove useful to the reader. Specifically, all cites include the full names of author and publication as well as publisher information. In many instances contact information has also been included to facilitate access to cited resources. Where appropriate, Internet sites that provide access to the cited print resources are referenced in order to provide an alternate means of obtaining the information. In these cases it is noted whether the access is to the full text of the resource or to abstracts or annotations.

I. FEDERAL STATUTES AND REGULATIONS

References to acts of Congress are followed by the code sections in which the named act was codified and which most closely affect agricultural cooperatives. For a fuller classification of each Act, showing the entire codification of the act, consult the tables volumes of the codes.

7 U.S.C. § 2 (1999).

Defines "cooperative association of producers" as referenced in the code.

Clayton Act of 1914, 15 U.S.C. § 17 (1999).

Grants exemption from some antitrust actions to agricultural cooperatives.

Capper-Volstead Act of 1922, 7 U.S.C. §§ 291-292 (1999).

Clarifies exemption granted with the Clayton Act and expressly extends to cooperatives having capital stock.

Cooperative Marketing Act of 1927, 7 U.S.C. §§ 451-457 (1999).

Defines "agricultural products" and establishes authority for the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a division of cooperative marketing.

Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, 7 U.S.C. § 601-626 (1999).

Prevents obstructions to interstate commerce and raises and stabilizes prices of certain products in order to stimulate interstate commerce.

Robinson-Patman Act of 1936, 15 U.S.C. § 13 (1999).

Prohibits all devices by which large buyers gain discriminatory preference by virtue of their purchasing power. Non-profit institutions are exempt from the price discrimination provisions of the Act.

Agriculture Marketing Service, 7 C.F.R. § 900 (1999).

Sets forth rules of practice and procedure governing formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders.

Cooperative Agreements, 7 C.F.R. § 4285 (1999).

Sets forth the policies and procedures and delegates authority for providing federal-state research on cooperative agreement funds to finance programs of research on cooperatives.

II. CASE LAW

Cases are included which define the law of agricultural cooperatives and are most heavily cited in the resources. Many of the cases that resolved important issues are dated in the 1920s and 1930s because most of the laws affecting cooperatives were enacted in those decades. This list of cases should be used as a starting point for research on a particular topic. As always, the researcher should thoroughly check each citation to verify the current application of any of these principles. This section of the bibliography is arranged in chronological order, according to the date of publication.

Dryden Local Growers v. Dormaier, 2 P.2d 274 (Wash. 1931).

A membership agreement for a cooperative is a contract, determining rights and obligations of the parties, and is therefore subject to actions for breach of contract.

Mountain View Walnut Growers' Ass'n v. California Walnut Growers Ass'n, 65 P.2d 80 (Cal. Ct. App. 1937).

Cooperatives can be held to a higher standard when acting as agent and fiduciary rather than in capacity as a corporation.

Snyder v. Colwell Coop. Grain Exch., 3 N.W.2d 507 (Iowa 1942).

Cooperatives can be held liable for breach of the managing officer's fiduciary relationship with shareholders.

Driver v. Producers Coop., 345 S.W.2d 16 (Ark. 1961).

A cooperative board's noncompliance with its charter and bylaws is subject to judicial review under an abuse of discretion standard.

Case-Swayne Co. v. Sunkist Growers, Inc., 389 U.S. 384 (1967).

Explains and applies the Capper-Volstead Act. This case thoroughly examines the legislative history of the Capper-Volstead Act.

Claassen v. Farmers Grain Corp., 490 P.2d 376 (Kan. 1971).

A cooperative is not a corporation organized to make profit for itself but only for its members. Members do not have a right to withdraw funds if the board believes it might disturb the financial condition of the cooperative as a whole.

Treasure Valley Potato Bargaining Ass'n v. Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., 497 F.2d 203 (9th Cir. 1974), cert. denied, 419 U.S. 999 (1974).

The Capper-Volstead Act authorizes two associations of growers to agree on price.

National Broiler Marketing Ass'n v. United States, 436 U.S. 816 (1978).

Reviews the legislative history of the Capper-Volstead Act. Defines "farmers" within the meaning of 7 U.S.C. § 291. Benefits afforded to farmer cooperatives should not extend to corporate entities as members of cooperative.

Fairdale Farms, Inc. v. Yankee Milk, Inc., 635 F.2d 1037 (2nd Cir. 1980).

An association of cooperatives organized for the sole purpose of fixing prices is entitled to protection under the Capper-Volstead Act. The Capper-Volstead Act anticipated the threat of monopolies and includes precautions to prevent abuse of monopoly power.

United States v. Dairymen, Inc., 660 F.2d 192 (6th Cir. 1981).

The Capper-Volstead Act was intended to permit agricultural producers to join together to process, prepare, and market agricultural products without fear of prosecution under antitrust laws. Agricultural cooperatives formed solely to fix prices are permitted under the Act.

Alexander v. National Farmers Org., 687 F.2d 1173 (8th Cir. 1982).

An agricultural cooperative claiming the Capper-Volstead exemption must take appropriate action to police its membership. If non-farmer middlemen are included in an otherwise exempt cooperative, it will lose its Capper-Volstead exemption.

The West digest system is very helpful for further research in case law. The West key number topic Agriculture Key 6 represents "Cooperative Corporations or Associations."

IV. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

The Rural Business — Cooperative Services section of the United States Department of Agriculture publishes a large number of reports, directories and guides that are particularly useful for researching agricultural cooperatives. The mission of the Cooperative Services Program is to promote the understanding and use of the cooperative form of business as a viable organizational option for marketing and distributing agricultural products.⁵ The full text of the catalog of available resources can be viewed at the department web site. (See the "Internet Resources" portion of this bibliography for additional information regarding the USDA web site.) In addition, information about publications and other services the department offers can be obtained by contacting the department directly. Contact:

V. BOOKS AND PRACTICE MATERIALS

This section of the bibliography is arranged in alphabetical order according to the author's last name. The annotations provided are intended to be informative rather than evaluative. The brief description should help the readers quickly decide what resources will be of most use in their research.

MARTIN ABRAHAMSEN, AGRICULTURAL CO-OPERATION IN THE UNITED STATES (Plunket Foundation for Co-Operative Studies 1980).

This publication includes a selection of materials covering the development of agricultural cooperatives. Also published as Occasional Paper No. 45, Plunkett Foundation for Co-operative Studies.

DAVID COBIA, COOPERATIVES IN AGRICULTURE (2d ed. Prentice-Hall 1992).

Comprehensive discussion of the use of cooperatives in agriculture.

LEE EGERSTROM ET AL., SEIZING CONTROL: THE INTERNATIONAL MARKET POWER OF COOPERATIVES (Lone Oak Press 1996).

The authors look at the role of cooperative boards and address the potential use of cooperatives as farmers attempt to offer value-added processing.

NEIL D. HARL, AGRICULTURAL LAW (Looseleaf Service, Matthew Bender 1981).

Part 16 (Chapters 127-37) deals exclusively with agricultural cooperatives. Sections include antitrust, securities, tax, and director's and officer's liability.

J.W. LOONEY, AGRICULTURAL LAW: A LAWYER'S GUIDE TO REPRESENTING FARM CLIENTS (American Bar Association 1990).

Provides an overview of the large body of law effecting family farms and agricultural businesses.

GLYNN MCBRIDE, AGRICULTURAL COOPERATIVES: THEIR WHY AND THEIR HOW (AVI Publishing Company 1986).

Textbook covering the justification for domestic farmer cooperatives and the practical functioning of cooperative organizations.

WAYNE D. RASMUSSEN, FARMERS, COOPERATIVES, AND USDA: A HISTORY OF AGRICULTURAL COOPERATIVE SERVICE (U.S. Dep't of Agric. 1991).

This book was written to document the USDA's role in helping producers and other rural residents to form and use cooperatives.

MARVIN SHAARS, COOPERATIVES, PRINCIPLES, AND PRACTICES (University of Wisconsin Center for Cooperatives Publication 1980).

Practical introductory text on cooperatives. Includes information on history, legal requirements, organization, and operations.

WEST COAST COOPERATIVE DIRECTORY AND RESOURCE GUIDE (University of California Center for Cooperatives 1999).

Includes nearly 2,000 cooperatives with members in California, Oregon, and Washington and a list of resource organizations and university centers across the United States. The full directory information is also available at the University of California Center for Cooperatives web site.⁶ (See "Internet Resources" portion of this bibliography for additional information on the Center web site.)

VII. ARTICLES AND ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS

This section of the bibliography is arranged in alphabetical order according to the author's last name. Annotations provide a brief subject overview of each article.

James R. Baarda, Farmers Cooperative Equity Conflicts: Judicial Decisions in the 1980's, 12 HAMLIN L. REV. 699 (1989).

Provides a discussion of court decisions relating to cooperative members' investment in cooperative capital.

David L. Baumer et al., Curdling the Competition: An Economic and Legal Analysis of the Antitrust Exemption for Agriculture, 31 VILL. L. REV. 183 (1986).

Focusing on the milk industry, this article examines the agricultural antitrust exemption as it affects cooperatives and the price of agricultural products.

Jim Chen, The American Ideology, 48 VAND. L. REV. 809 (1995).

Chronicles the changing nature of farming and agriculture in America placing U.S. agricultural laws and history in a global context.

Carla Tolbert Cook, Antitrust Action Against Milk Marketing Cooperatives — Shaking Up the Milk Industry, 34 DRAKE L. REV. 493 (1984-1985).

Provides a historical examination of agricultural cooperatives and antitrust legislation as applied to the milk industry.

Michael L. Cook, Cooperative Principles and Equity Financing: A Discussion of a Critical Discussion, 7 J. AGRIC. COOPERATION 99 (1992).

Mr. Cook offers a response to an article by Jeffrey S. Royer (see infra). This paper examines alternative cooperative philosophies and advocates the use of risk allocation in distribution of benefits to cooperative members.

John D. Copeland, The Status of an Agricultural Cooperative When a Farmer Member Experiences Financial Distress, 23 U.C. DAVIS L. REV. 551 (1990).

Examines member financial difficulties as they effect cooperative organizations. In particular, the rights a cooperative can assert when a member files for bankruptcy and what obstacles cooperatives may confront in a member's bankruptcy proceeding.

James B. Dean, Current Issues Concerning Cooperatives in the United States, 30 S.D. L. REV. 286 (1985).

Discusses issues facing cooperatives focusing mainly on agricultural cooperatives.

James B. Dean, Agricultural Cooperatives: An Update, 73 NEB. L. REV. 227 (1994).

Surveys the law relating to agricultural cooperatives especially as it applies to the fiduciary duty of cooperatives and tax consequences for cooperative organizations.

Kathryn J. Dedo, Cooperative Mergers and Consolidations: A Consideration of the Legal and Tax Issues, 63 N.D. L. REV. 377 (1987).

Discusses fundamental transactions, such as merger and dissolution, and their related tax consequences.

John R. Dunn, Basic Cooperative Principles and Their Relationship to Selected Practices, 3 J. AGRIC. COOPERATION 83 (1988).

Outlines cooperative principles relating to ownership, control, and distribution of benefits.

Joan R. Fulton & Wilctor L. Adamowicz, Factors That Influence the Commitment of Members to Their Cooperative Organizations, 8 J. AGRIC. COOPERATION 39 (1993).

Reviews empirical and theoretical research on cooperatives and discusses the main factors that influence member patronage.

Neil D. Hamilton, Agriculture Without Farmers? Is Industrialization Restructuring American Food Production and Threatening the Future of Sustainable Agriculture?, 14 N. ILL. U. L. REV. 613 (1994).

Part of a symposium on the changing structures and expectations in agriculture. Explores the idea that cooperatives can provide sustainable agriculture in a changing global environment.

Stephen D. Hawke, Antitrust Implications of Agricultural Cooperatives, 73 KY. L.J. 1003 (1984-1985).

Provides a survey of the case law relating to the Capper-Volstead requirements for agricultural cooperatives.

Sally J. Kelly, Agricultural Law: A Selected Bibliography, 1985-1992, 19 WM. MITCHELL L. REV. 481 (1993).

Lists articles and books covering twenty-four subjects related to agricultural law.

Mary Beth Matthews, Recent Developments in the Law Regarding Agricultural Cooperatives, 68 N.D. L. REV. 273 (1992).

Discusses recent court decisions relating to agricultural cooperatives and argues against the existence of independent fiduciary obligation by cooperative toward members in equity redemption decisions.

Claudia Parliament & Zvi Lerman, Risk and Equity in Agricultural Cooperatives, 7 J. AGRIC. COOPERATION (1992).

Compares capitalization of cooperatives with investor oriented businesses.

Thomas W. Paterson & Willard F. Mueller, Sherman Section 2 Monopolization for Agricultural Marketing Cooperatives, 60 TUL. L. REV. 955 (1986).

Analyzes the court's application of the Sherman Act to traditional monopolies and to agricultural cooperatives.

Sharlene F. Roberts-Caudle, Agricultural Cooperative Member Equity: You Don't Have To Die For It!, 7 S.J. AGRIC. L. REV. 1 (1997).

Examines the relationship between cooperatives and their former members.

Jeffrey S. Royer, Cooperative Principles and Equity Financing: A Critical Discussion, 7 J. AGRIC. COOPERATION 79 (1992).

Explores the impacts of the "principles of cooperation" on the practices of voting, equity acquisition, and equity redemption in U.S. agricultural cooperatives. Compares cooperative organizations with patron-owned corporations.
